A photograph of the World Trade Center towers on September 11, 2001. A large, bright orange and yellow fireball is visible in the sky, with a thick plume of dark smoke rising from it. The towers are visible in the background, and other buildings of the New York City skyline are in the foreground.

The Terrorist War

Aubrey Rositano & Amanda Daily

...All it took was simply two planes to change the lives of others, forever

-
- A woman wearing a black niqab and a green jacket stands in a large pile of trash. The background is filled with various pieces of waste, including plastic bottles, paper, and other debris. The woman's face is mostly covered by the niqab, with only her eyes visible through a narrow slit. The overall scene suggests a state of poverty or environmental neglect.
- Woman are deficient in intelligence and religion
 - Woman are deficient in gratitude
 - Woman are liked to a crooked rib

Required to wear clothing to the point of covering everything but the faces, sometimes even only the eyes are visible.

Chronicle / Kim Komenich

The US military is currently in Iraq to prevent chaos from happening. If no one takes charge soon enough, much more lives will be taken away.

Still today,
the woman and children are looking for hope!

